

HAPPY NEW YEAR!!! Herald-Observer

VOLUME 43—NUMBER 11

THURSDAY, JANUARY 1, 1981

BELLE GLADE — PAHOKEE, FL.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR will be celebrated at the Belle Glade Marina, at least by city employees and others who've been promising the opening of the new campsites since Oct. 1. This bird's eye view is looking east toward the city. Features of the marina, once construction is completed (hopefully Jan.

15) will include: 1) Pavilion, 2) Boat Launching area, 3) Channel to be cut through existing causeway, 4) Parking area for boaters, 5) Residential area for park personnel, 6) Campsites, 7) Additional 200 campsites to be added later, 8) Office, 9) Comfort Station and, 10) Borrow pit.

That was the year that was

If 1980 was typical of what people in the Glades can expect from the decade, the next nine years should provide more questions than answers, particularly where essential services are concerned.

One of the few major projects completed, for instance, was the National Weather Service radio transmitter near Clewiston, a project begun in the first week of January and only completed in mid-December.

That service is expected to put farmers in western Palm Beach County closer in touch with what they can expect from weather in the immediate future.

More typical of the year, however, were questions such as what the area residents can expect to do with garbage and trash generated, what will eventually be done with wastewater runoff and sewage and how the growing population of the Glades will get enough drinking water... not to mention the costs involved.

1980 was the year the Prince Theatre got off the ground in Pahokee, the year construction was started on a 500 seat auditorium on the Glades campus of Palm Beach Junior College, and the third decennial hour-long television commentary on the problems involved in migrant labor.

It was the year of on-again, off-again lawsuits concerning Belle Glade city elections, neither of which are resolved yet. And if elections didn't provide enough headaches for the city commission, City Manager Robert Sanders resigned, only to have his records sealed shortly afterward... and those ragsball courts.

It all began a year ago, the first week of January, when several members of the National Weather Service toured the Glades to establish a need for a radio station to provide 12-hour updates on advisories, a radio station that went into operation on Dec. 14 in Hooker's Point.

The tour came about the same time Belle Glade city commissioners objected to the planned, April 1, 1980 census, saying they didn't expect an accurate count.

Police officers gave merchants a hand when they began a series of meetings designed to help merchants avoid becoming victims of crime.

A proposed $287 million county road bond issue was explained in January, an explanation that went on until the bond went down to defeat in the Presidential Preferential primary.

With eight months of life left, the Budget and Policy Advisory Committee of the Glades project of the Palm Beach County Solid Waste Authority decided to build a transfer station at the Belle Glade landfill, whence solid waste would be transported to Lantana. The station was supposed to have begun operation Oct. 1. That latest forecast is for Jan. 15, 1981.

It was also in January that the Glades Area Association of Retarded Citizens began a campaign to raise $40,000 by mid-March to buy the land and buildings which formerly housed St. Peters Lutheran Church and School. This was one project that was begun and finished within the year.

By Feb. 1, plans were being hammered into the final stages to create a separate mental health district for the Glades to allow the Glades branch to pull out from under the wings of the 45th Street Center in West Palm Beach.

Ralph Kidder released his book about raising cattle at the old Everglades Experiment Station, with the title, Cattle to Cane. Bill Abel was recognized with a plaque in Belle Glade.

The South Bay city commission pleased most residents in February by starting the removal of junk cars but a lawsuit stemming from the removal still hasn't been resolved.

Service aims at socialization

BELLE GLADE—Socialization may be a misnomer for a new program just getting underway at the Glades Mental Health Center but it probably comes closer to describing the activities than anything else.

Clinical psychologist Paul DeConna, who said he came to Belle Glade to draw up the program, reflected Friday that, "socialization may be a had term. It sounds like something out of Hitler's Germany but everything you do, whether it's teaching a person how to comb his or her hair or to stir coffee, it's all a part of getting a person ready to get along in society."

Combing hair and stirring coffee, however, are only a pair of skills the program will be offering to members. "We're calling them members instead of clients because we want to get away from the hospital terminology," in one of several groups.

In the week the programs began, DeConna said he had 14-15 people enrolled as a core group and roughly half of those are enrolled in every one of the programs.

"We use a lot of little objectives in the various programs," DeConna said, "and we always think about the major goal."

The major goal, he said, is to help the group members function to the best of their ability as members of society. The groups attack the overall problem by sharpening social skills, grooming and hygiene, homemaking skills, vocational skills and personal interaction skills.

Socialization techniques are taught in two types of groups, a social group, in which the members serve coffee and doughnuts and chat in a social atmosphere, and the rap group, which DeConna said is for the more serious cases and involves himself and Ruth Howard as co-therapists.

Meanwhile, for those who have had problems with grooming and personal hygiene, he said he will be teaching the men's group and Gay Godwin will be teaching the women. He said he expects some members of the group to be enrolled because they've never learned to take care of themselves or because they've had some experience that left them unearring about their appearance.

Nora Cain will be in charge of a vocational group, in which motor skills, hand-eye coordination skills and general knowledge, such as the importance of promptness, will be taught.

DeConna said still another group will be learning homemaking skills, which are important because the members have to know how to take care of themselves if they're on their own to be independent. This group will be taught by Henrietta Allen, who will teach cooking, cleaning, budgeting money and using community resources.

Potential group members will be coming from a variety of areas, DeConna said, but at first will probably be mostly referrals from other programs within the Mental Health Center. He said he expects to expand the referral system eventually to include such areas as the County Health Department, local businesses and other agencies.

DeConna himself said he didn't come directly into psychology, although earlier experience, when

in Pahokee Water rates hiked 50 cents

By ALMA HENRY
PAHOKEE — Residents living in and around the City of Pahokee must once again rework their household expense budget for 1981.

Already faced with a property tax increase and a garbage rate increase, the Pahokee City Council unanimously agreed at a special meeting Monday night to increase the city water rates by 50 cents for residents living inside and outside of the city limits.

Prior to the actual vote, Councilman Curtis Miners said he was not in favor of a rate increase and would not vote for the increase.

"The residents of Pahokee are already faced with property tax and garbage rate increases, and I don't think they can stand another increase," said Miners.

"How do you expect us to pay our bills," replied Councilman George Rashley.

After George Cross, director of the Utilities Department, explained the rate increase would be only 50 cents, and the revenue from the increase would be approximately $40,000, the Council on a motion from W.E. McKinstry, and seconded by Rashley, voted for the increase.

The rate increase calls for residents in the city to pay $6 per unit for the first 4,000 gallons per unit, and $1.50 per 1,000 gallons per unit thereafter.

Residents living outside the city limits will pay the sum of $1.88 per 1,000 gallons of water with no minimum compensation per unit.

Under the old contracts, residents living in the city paid $6 per unit for the first 4,000 gallons per unit and $1 per 1,000 gallons per unit thereafter.

The rate for residents outside the city was $1.25, the new rate is a 63 cents increase.

Cross told the Council it presently costs $1.52 per 1,000 gallons to produce water and if the water department revenue is to finance the department an increase is needed.

City Attorney, Michael Stauder in a letter instructed the City Council that before the rate increase becomes effective, the notices must be sent to Southeastern States Utilities, Inc., and the Pahokee Housing Authority.

The letter said a copy of the increases must be in the hand of the Housing Authority by Jan. 1.

Back in September when the Council talked of water rate increases, Randy Mills, executive director of the housing authority and Mead Maxwell, chairman of the PHA Commission appeared before the Council when the city proposed water rate increases and cutbacks to once-a-week garbage collection.

At that meeting Mills and Maxwell said they had found a $10,000 error in the Water Department budget that turned out to be a typographical error.

Cross said with the new increases the water department would be able to carry itself whereas in the past revenue from the Waste Water Plant financed the bulk of the water departments operational cost.

Birthing unit is explored

BELLE GLADE—Glades General Hospital will be pursuing the idea of cooperating with the Florida Community Health Centers, Inc. to establish a "birthing unit" at the hospital to handle an estimated 350-400 births a year.

Glades General Administrator Pat Lennon said the hospital's board of trustees told him during a regular meeting last Tuesday to pursue the idea that was first proposed during the November meeting.

"If we can work out some of the potential problems," Lennon said, "I think it'll be an asset at the hospital."

He said the hospital probably provides service during 100 deliveries a year that aren't paid for and only collects on an estimated 15 to 20 percent of the total number of cases. The birthing unit would drop the number who don't pay to about that percentage, he said.

Some of the items that have to be worked out include pediatrics care for high-risk deliveries, neonatal care and an arrangement with the medical staff when they're needed.

A VOCATIONAL GROUP in the Socialization Program begins work with paints to build hand-eye coordination and motor skills as Paul DeConna watches therapists Henrietta Allen, Lena Scurlcock and Gay Godwin (facing camera) and group members.

County farmers produce $493.5 million

The market value of agricultural products sold by the 725 farms in Palm Beach County amounted to $493.5 million for 1978 or an average of $680,739 each, up from $263.1 million in 1974 with an accompanying increase in production costs, according to a preliminary report of the 1978 Census of Agriculture released today by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

A breakdown of the county's total agricultural sales for 1978 followed that for 1974, is as follows: Crops, $468.4 million compared with $247.6 million; livestock, poultry, and their products, $25.2 and $15.4 million.

While the value of gross sales rose, the farmers' cost also climbed since 1974. For example, expenditures for feed for livestock and poultry for 1978 were $9.2 million compared to $7.2 million; cost of gasoline, diesel and other petroleum products were $10.7 million compared to $5.3 million. Farm energy costs of all types totaled $12.9 million for 1978. The estimated market value of machinery and equipment per farm increased from $39,282 to $114,113.

Of the total farms in the county, 242 had gross sales of $100,000 or more and 290 had sales of under $10,000. Farms operated by individuals or families represented 55 percent of the total; farms operated by corporations accounted for 31 percent. Some 79 percent of the operators owned all or part of the land they operated.

In 1978 the average age of farm operator was 49.5 years. Since 1974, the proportion of operators listing farming as their principal occupation changed from 84 percent to 59 percent.

Data in the reports for acreage and inventories for 1978 and 1974 are generally comparable; however, improved coverage in 1978, especially of smaller farms, should be taken into consideration in making direct comparisons of farm counts. Dollar values have not been adjusted for changes in price levels.

Other results of the census show the 725 farms counted in 1978 had an average size of 1,026 acres. For 1974, 495 farms were counted with an average size of 1,047 acres. The land in farms totaled 743,844 acres in 1978 and 518,246 acres in 1974. Crops were harvested from 452,176 acres in 1978 and 277,100 acres in 1974. Land irrigated increased from 308,846 acres in 1974 to 490,108 acres in 1978.

The number of cattle and calves decreased from 95,732 to 83,040, while farms with 500 or more on hand accounted for 89 percent. There were 52,681 cattle and calves sold in 1978.

Sales of dairy product were reported by 13 farms and totaled $2.2 million. The number of milk cows reported was 7,778 in 1978 vs. 9,590 in 1974.

Hens and pullets of laying age increased from 787 in 1974 to 12,645 in 1978. Acreages of crops harvested for 1978 and 1974 were as follows: corn for grain 9,238 acres in 1978; land in orchards, 18,640 acres vs. 16,384 acres, with oranges accounting for 12,100 acres in 1978; vegetables, 114,000 acres with sweet corn accounting for 33,228 acres in 1978; sugarcane, 306,103 acres in 1978.

The figures are for farms qualifying under the definition: Any place from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold, or normally would have been sold, during the census year.

The agriculture census was conducted in 1979 to obtain data on the Nation's farm production and sales for calendar year 1978. Information from the farm census, the 21st of a series which began in 1840, will be used by Federal, State and county agencies, agricultural colleges, agricultural and business groups, and farmers to help make a variety of decisions about agricultural programs and policies.

Year

The biggest news of the month for more than a few people in Pahokee was when the O.D. Express, sometimes known as the Pahokee High School band, won fourth place in competition at Mardi Gras.

That was the week the Pahokee City Council decided to take over operation of the city marina from long-term operator Charles Jerwin.

If March didn't blow in with the traditional winds, sufficient breezes were supplied by politicians in Florida's presidential primary election. It got more personal in South Bay though, when Don Tanner and Ray Sullivan were re-elected to the city commissioner and Sammy Rogers won over two competitors without a runoff.

Distaff basketball teams representing both Glades Central and Pahokee High Schools made it all the way to the state tournament and the Lady Raiders came within one point of winning the state title and a perfect season when two free shots were made in the last five seconds. Meanwhile, local golfer Calvin Peete broke into the top ranks of professional golfers, ranked 27th on the PGA tour and was featured in Sports Illustrated.

Auditoriums made the news when the Prince Theatre celebrated its grand opening by presenting the Spring Fever Revue to rave reviews. Things weren't going as well, however, for the Palm Beach Junior College Auditorium on the campus. Bids for construction were opened and inflation struck, forcing the school to find more funds.

And members of the Community United Methodist Church in Belle Glade celebrated Easter by carrying a ten-foot cross from the Municipal Civic Center to the church in a small parade. Local Cubans made the news in April when they marched to support 10,000 of their countrymen at the Peruvian embassy in Havana. Later in the month, the local leaders met with Antonio Varona of Miami to form a local chapter of Junta Patriótica Cubana, a patriotic umbrella organization encompassing 97 other groups. The Cuban Freedom Flotilla got underway in Miami that same weekend and more than 1,000 refugees were processed through the Gulf & Western sugar mill at Okeelanta while Miami started its tent city.

The good news of the month came with the celebration of the Second Annual Black Gold Jubilee in Belle Glade and a confirmation that the National Weather Service Transmittal would be built in Hookers Point. The Black Gold celebration could've used the radio service as the parade wound through the second half of its route in a rainstorm and the arts and crafts show moved into the fire station.

In Pahokee, a political era came to an end in May when Duncan Padgett handed the mayor's gavel over to Norman "Pro" Norman after announcing he'd run his last political race. Norman won the hotly contested race in a runoff against Wryonia Cummings while Jon Mock was elected to the city council.

Padgett was honored by friends and associates at a roast later in the month. Honored also was Citizen of the Year during the Pahokee Chamber of Commerce annual banquet.

Ground was broken for the PBJC-Glades auditorium, which was salvaged by a concentrated sales job spearheaded by Dr. Edward Eisey and Dolly Hand. And in South Bay, Charles Merz resigned his position of city manager after receiving criticism for not having found a home in the city.

June was marked by one problem after another in the Glades, beginning with a recommended 112 percent increase, by 1982, in water and sewer rates in Belle Glade, a recommendation that's been modified and discussed until now, late in December, the commission has apparently decided they'll have to impose a 52 percent in February 1981, with further increases to hike the total to 76 percent by 1983.

Personnel problems in the school system hit home when a three year contract was refused. Elsewhere, Lake Middle School principal Lillie Meadows, who accepted a position, instead, as assistant principal at Rosenwald Elementary School while charges of racism were made in her case as well as other personnel adjustments being made by School Superintendent Thomas Miller. The Belle Glade Lions Club backed a move by member Roy Rausch to start a tax revolt, which suggested that local businesses withhold their federal taxes until regulations were changed to require recipients of unemployment compensation to accept jobs that were offered them. Rausch manages the local Labor Force office.

And one man was killed when the Fears Hotel was damaged by fire.

That landmark in Belle Glade wasn't noticeably changed by the fire but in July, another landmark in South Bay was when it was announced negotiations were underway for the sale of South Bay Growers to United States Sugarcane Corporation in Clewiston. The sale wasn't consummated immediately but became final before the year was over.

It was also the first week in which the Trailways announced it would no longer serve the Belle Glade-Pahokee area and would take advantage of the deregulation of trucks and buses by the state legislature. Glades Motor Lines, headquartered in Fort Myers has continued service in the old Trailways terminal.

The good news for the month was the Freedom Festival in Pahokee, sponsored by Pahokee Civic Pride. Hundreds of people gathered on July Fourth at the Pahokee Harbor to eat barbecue and hot dogs, cool off with homemade ice cream, warm up with hot licks by a country and western band and finish the day off with fireworks.

In Belle Glade, July opened with the formal opening of the long-awaited Airport Park, with no indication of the controversy that was to come up from the construction of the racquetball courts there in the last three months of the year.

And water and sewer rates were hiked in South Bay.

The Herald-Observer celebrated Independence Day a month late, according to some local residents, when the 15 cent price tag that had been part of its format since 1973 was dropped and we went free, making the best the biggest.

More emergency services agencies were involved in one disaster drill than ever before when 11 of the groups responded to an "explosion" at South Bay Elementary School. The school provided still more practice a few weeks later when it was burned.

The bad news came when NBC aired The Migrant 1980, an hour-long documentary, accused by many of being biased, which depicted the condition of farm workers' conditions in South Florida and the Belle Glade-Pahokee area in particular. The allegations in the broadcast were refuted in detail in a report by the Florida and American Farm Bureau Federations late last month.

Groundwork for charges by the city were laid in Belle Glade when John Asberry qualified as a candidate against incumbent City Commissioner Tom Altman on the last day of the qualifying period, then backed out a week later. Asberry has since been indicated for false swearing and elections fraud. Another lawsuit the city is still involved in from the 1979 city election finally made it to the appellate level late in the year when a three-judge panel heard arguments that City Commissioner Dorothy Walker wasn't living in the east borough she was elected to represent.

And Belle Glade City Manager Robert Sanders resigned after three and a

from around the nation started looking at Glades Central players Greg Bain and Jesse Heater and the entire Glades Day team earned the name Skinheads when their heads were shorn as a sign of unity.

Sandra Chambliss was named Citizen of the Year during the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce awards banquet. Also honored were Alvaro Sanchez as the Agricultural Industrial Man of the Year and Ron Shunk as Policeman of the Year.

In November, a leash law, something that had been fought for years in Belle Glade, was adopted after a local woman described to commissioners how a pack of dogs invaded her porch, killed a pet kitten and threatened her daughter.

At Glades General Hospital, a recommendation, still under discussion, was made to establish a birthing clinic, which would be expected to be the place where some 350-400 babies a year would be born.

It was football again in December as the Glades Day Gators captured the first Class A football state championship in South Florida in the past ten years, creating Gatormania in the community as they were also the only team in the state to go undefeated. The Glades Central Raiders went as far as the semi-final playoff game, where they were eliminated by Titusville High, coached by former Raider coach Al Werneke.

What may have been the most amazing news in the past month, however, and possibly the year, was the possibility Belle Glade may cooperate with Florida Rural Legal Services, antagonists in a number of lawsuits in the past and presently, to attempt to adjust the census count in the city.

half years to go to Key West, kicking off further controversy that surfaced a month later when his records were sealed amidst charges by then-Mayor Tom Altman that Sanders had manipulated the commission by supplying false information or withholding information on which they could make decisions.

Altman was re-elected on Sept. 9 and he was joined by Charles Goodlett, a police officer and chief for the past 32 years who defeated veteran commissioner Ralph Kirk.

And the commissioners explored ways to have the 1980 census adjusted.

The Coastal Community Committee is William E. Lewis, Earl Crossman Jr., Ted Winsberg, E. Wayne DuBois and Raymond DuBois.

The Community Committee members were elected by constituents in their communities and serve one year. Their primary responsibility is to elect the County Committee members.

How I See It

by Abna Henry

As the Christmas/New Year holiday season comes to a close, I wish each of our visitors from the North have had a pleasant stay in sunny, but cold South Florida.

As you make your journey home north of the Mason-Dixon Line I wish each of you a safe trip home and a prosperous New Year, although President-elect Ronald Reagan will be sworn in as the next president of the United States in a couple of weeks.

It was a joy seeing and visiting with old friends, especially, my old friend and soror, Sharon Vereen Brown and her son, Daniel Brown, Jr.

As we celebrate the beginning of the new year remember to support two of the community's active Black organizations that will be sponsoring New Year events. The GENTS and the Sophisticated Ladies Club will be sponsoring New Year functions at the Lake Shore Civic Center on Wednesday and Saturday, respectively. Each of the organizations in the past have presented scholarships to deserving Black youths in the community to insure they accomplish their dreams of a college education.

Each of the organizations' 1981 agenda calls for the presentations of scholarships to area seniors at the close of the school year. Give a helping hand and help the Black youths of our community.

As we approach the New Year, each of us will be making New Year resolutions. Some of us will keep them and some of us will let them fall by the way side, but as Black Americans here in the Glades lets do as Black Americans here in the Glades state of America are doing: adopt the following resolution and as we go forth with our dreams, ambitions and aspirations for 1981.

0 Lord, how long shall I cry, and thou wilt not hear! Even cry out unto thee of violence, and thou wilt not hear! Why dost thou show me iniquity, and cause me to behold grievance? For spoiling and violence are before me: and there are that raise up strife and contention. Therefore the Law is slackened, and Judgement doth never go forth; for wicked doth compass about the righteous; therefore wrong Judgement proceedeth. Habak 1:2-3

WHEREAS, we as Americans and Floridians, are entitled to due process and equal protection of the Law.

WHEREAS, we, as Americans and Floridians, are entitled to a fair and equitable criminal justice system.

WHEREAS, we as Black citizens, are not likely to remain to the judicial profile to be perceived as bail up on recognition.

WHEREAS, we as Black citizens, constitute a disproportionate number of those who are arrested and charged with violations of the Law.

WHEREAS, we, as Black citizens, are not accorded meaningful participation in Judges, Court Officials and in Law Enforcement Agencies.

WHEREAS, by statutory mandate the use of the voter registration list effectively limits Black citizenship participation in and access to the Grand and Petit Jury Panels.

WHEREAS, it appears that our supposedly colorblind system of Criminal Justice work to produce exoneration or mild results for White defendants who victimize Blacks and incarceration and inequitable punishment for Black defendants who victimize Whites.

WHEREAS, we, as Black citizens, are adjudicated guilty and granted more severe sentences by the Courts than Whites for the same crimes.

WHEREAS, There are no visible governmental efforts being employed to remedy the above historical inequities.

BE IT THEREFORE,

RESOLVED, that the Supreme Court of the State of Florida, the Circuit Courts, and the District Courts should reconsider their policies, practices and procedures in order to provide Black Citizens with equal and fair access to the Courts.

RESOLVED, that the State Attorney, United States Attorney, Public Defenders and members of the Florida Bar seize every opportunity available under Law to assure that the judicial rights of Blacks are protected.

RESOLVED, that the Governor of the State of Florida, and the President of the United States should effectively utilize the explicit and implicit powers of their officers to administratively mandate equality under law.

RESOLVED, that the Congress of the United States and the Legislature of the State of Florida should undertake the necessary measures, which shall be required to assure equal justice under law.

RESOLVED, that Black Floridians, shall utilize any and every forum made available to redress person of all faiths, colors, and creeds to assure a cessation and elimination of racism in our criminal justice system.

Note: Resolution issued by the Florida Chapter of the NAACP at its winter meeting in December.

Police make sense

A resolution proposed last week by Belle Glade Police Chief D. Bill Mathis, and passed by the city commission in support of the Palm Beach County Police Chiefs Association makes

Scott Ellis

The first inklings are in, and what these indicators indicate are what we all should've deduced before - President Reagan isn't going to be the right-wing savior, the militarists' savior, the business savior, or anybody else's savior. He's going to be a pragmatic politician, perhaps even a caretaker president, representing the entire country.

All-ready, the conservative groups of the country, the groups that gave Reagan his majority, are yelling that the ex-movie star has abandoned his right-wing base. The National Conservative Political Action Committee (NCPAC) and other "majority" special interest concerns have warned the President-elect not to stray from the righteous path, or face their wrath four years from now.

The early reaction from conservative groups to Reagan's alleged shift to the center should be a signal to what's left of liberalism in this country. The Republicans don't plan a return to the days of Herbert Hoover. If they actually tried this, we'd have revolts like we experienced in the sixties and a depression like we had in the Thirties. The Republicans would lose a lot of votes from disgruntled constituents too. However, Reagan does plan some federal budget cuts - right here in Florida.

Reagan's task force has already recommended that all interstate road construction be halted. If implemented, this policy would severely hurt Florida, with estimated stretches of I-95 and I-75 still incomplete. And Florida went heavily for Reagan in the general election, and is one of the fastest-growing states in the nation.

As a result of this rather narrow-minded policy, a lot of state politicians of both parties are sounding their dismay about it. And well they should, Florida needs those interstate highways.

But the fact that Reagan, who promised to trim the federal budget, is proposing such a cut, is an acknowledgment as well of his pragmatic thinking. South Florida is important to Reagan, but compared to the rest of the nation (which has most of its vital interstates completed), our desperate need for completion of our interstates is not more important than Reagan's promises to cut the federal budget. After all, we elected a man who pledged to slash the budget, and each slash has to hurt somebody somewhere.

There's where the real problem comes in. It's human nature to want to cry out for reductions in the bloated federal bureaucracy. And there is, no doubt, some waste there. Identifying that waste, though, is the problem. We want the budget to be cut, but not in a program that benefits us - like Florida's interstates. Cut somebody else's pork barrel, but don't mess with ours!

Our armed forces need to be strengthened, and in this I am in perfect accord with President Reagan. I ran shows that we just can't be pushed around anymore and still be the leader of the free world. But Reagan has promised to trim domestic budgets to the bone in order to achieve this military buildup. And the cuts will be even more drastic if the tax-cutting plans he has advocated go through.

The Florida interstate funding issue clearly shows that cutting the budget, at any government level, is simply not that easy. And it also shows that budget cuts are going to hurt somebody, somewhere, and persons effected by those cuts are going to squawk about them.

I gotta be honest, I didn't vote for Ronald Reagan. I didn't want to see him be president and I think to survive in office he'll have to be a caretaker president (like Eisenhower) or he'll suffer a heart attack before his term is over. But to see Republicans hollering about Reagan making the very budget cuts he promised over and over to do if he got elected is on the verge of the hypocritical.

Just what do you think we elected Reagan for, anyway?

It's obvious to anyone with a modicum of intelligence who has been watching the criminal justice system, not only in the State of Florida but throughout the nation, that the thrust made for all too many years now hasn't worked.

For all too many years now, the ideas have been propagated that it isn't the criminal's fault that he's a criminal. It's the fault of society but the nagging question still remains: why does one person go bad when brothers and sisters walk the straight and narrow?

For too many years, there have been too many prosecutors who've taken the easy way out by offering plea bargaining; too many juvenile officers and judges who've taken no action against the short pants set of criminals; too many judges who've joined too many members of the general public who seem to think a jail or prison is supposed to be a country club, stressing rehabilitation to the point of excluding the other three reasons for incarcerating lawbreakers, namely the deterrence of other crimes, punishment and removing dangerous people from society.

The result has been as the police chiefs point out, a lack of respect by the public in general and the criminal element in particular, for police and the criminal justice system.

It's time and past time to take their advice and get tough; cut down on the amount of plea bargaining, set higher bond schedules, set stiffer sentences, build more prisons to eliminate the revolving door policy that now exists and place the responsibility for crime squarely on the shoulders of the criminal, including the responsibility where possible to reimburse the victim.

And it's a good time for state legislators to take notice and consider using this as one New Year's Resolution as the basis for new state laws and policies.

And, brother, if that sounds like a testimonial and free advertising then so be it. It's also news.

Cracker Crumbs

"You know what you oughta do a column on, Dean." is usually the one thing I can hear that'll plug my ears up with wax to the point I can't hear a word the speaker's saying. That's why I wasn't paying too much attention the other day when Bill made just that comment.

It wasn't until several minutes later, when he said something about a menu, that my ears perked up and I tuned in to what he was saying about a new chef at the Holiday Inn.

First of all, there are a number of words that grab my attention every time... things like money, sex, food.

But my first reaction was, "Whaddya mean, new chef? I wasn't under the impression there ever was a person in the Glades who could lay an honest claim to the title."

But to cut through to the meat of the matter, so to speak, Bill got even more attention when he showed me the menu they started to use down at the local Inn.

Baby back ribs? Lamb chops? Chicken Cordon Bleu? Stuffed mushrooms as an appetizer? Come on, this is Nando's menu, right?

The saliva was flowing by now and when Bill mentioned the possibility of a restaurant review, I wasn't quite as negative as I would've ordinarily been.

First of all, Bill, I've never tried that kind of writing. Besides, it's free advertising and that ain't kosher so far as I'm concerned. And it goes double so far as Cracker Crumbs is concerned.

Besides, like the cracker art critic said, I know what I like but it isn't so easy to say why. And what would I do with a dinner for two anyway? Eat both of 'em?

Get a date? Lessee, I know what a date is. I had one back in 1982. You wanna go, Bill? You're working that night, huh? Too bad, we'd have made a great couple. This whole thing was your idea anyway, big fella.

Anyway, after all that was straightened out and Cindy Small (I said that was a description and not a name, lady!) agreed to make it Beauty and the Beast. But it's to laugh when she said she was worried I might stand her up. Not when two such unique things are combined at once in my lifetime, honey.

So, here we go and Hi there, Tom Karas and David Perella. Tom's the chef and Dave is the new general manager at the Inn. By the way, Tom's the one who recommends the entire menu when you ask what's good tonight. Dave's the one who backs him up.

Dave is also the one, according to Tom, who may have made history when he got a general manager and a chef on their knees pulling weeds in the courtyard. That was before they fled in total retreat before the assault of a garter snake... who happened to be beating his own retreat in the opposite direction.

Not that I'm casting aspersions. Personally, I agree with the comment on snakes I recently ran across in a survival manual distributed in fliers in the CBI (China-Burma-India Theatre) during World War Two, that gave the sovereign advice to avoid 'em all. "Consider yourself unlucky if you see one."

I might also add that Tom and Dave are absolutely useless when it comes to providing any meaningful help in making a decision about what to order... not when they're sitting there saying it's all good.

So, as Cindy Small said, solve that problem by ordering one of everything.

Okay, so that's impractical, but I'll say this: everything I tried was good, and that includes everything from the salad through the turf and surf (who needs a knife?) to the chocolate mousse.

But if you're like me, the one item that'll impress you more than anything else is the bread, a small loaf of yeast bread still warm from the oven. I'm glad there wasn't a mirror handy because I'd have probably blushed.

And, brother, if that sounds like a testimonial and free advertising then so be it. It's also news.

One thing about it, by the way, is that it sure makes it easy to come up with at least one New Year's resolution. Before the year's out, I'm going to find some way to try everything on the menu.

ARC Center flurry of activities

BELLE GLADE--The Glades Area ARC Center has been a flurry of activity during the past two weeks. On Saturday, Dec. 19, the basketball team finished in first place in their division to advance to the State Special Olympic Regional Games to be held at Patrick Air Force Base, Jan. 9 and 10. On Tuesday, Dec. 16, both of the adult programs visited the National Bank enquirer tree and got in some last minute Christmas shopping.

The sixth Grade Class from St. Peter's Lutheran Church visited the center with stockings they had made for each child and adult. There was also a surprise visit from Santa Claus.

Thursday, Carolyn

Watt's Human Care Services and Child Guidance Classes from Glades Central High School held a party for the Preschool and Adult Developmental classes. The students prepared homemade cake and cupcakes, made table centerpieces, and prepared tree trimming decorations. The students sang Christmas carols and brought holiday music for the preschoolers and adults to listen to. And Santa Claus couldn't stay away from that party either.

The week ended on a festive note, when the students from the center were guests of the Library Staff at another Christmas Party. Along with Christmas stockings filled with goodies donated by the Rainbow Girls and Christmas carolling with Susan Stryker.

You may be sure that anyone who has suffered through a full blown case of sciatica will agree that the pain is one of life's most agonizing experiences. Because there is no other pain quite like it, it is difficult to make a comparison; but the worst toothache imaginable is of about the same magnitude as the devastating pain of acute sciatica.
Sciatica is a frequently misunderstood and underrated disease condition. It is often mistakenly called sciatica rheumatism. Some refer to it as lumbago, while others think of sciatica as being any low back or hip pain.
Actually, sciatica is a painful inflammation of the sciatic nerve which supplies the tissues of the thigh, lower leg, and foot. It is most often caused by a pinching of one or more spinal nerve roots between spinal bones (vertebrae) of the lower back.
The pain of sciatica is so excruciating that sufferers cannot even find relief by confining themselves to bed. Pains in the low back and the backs of the legs result from inflammation of the large sciatic nerve. This in turn is due to spinal imbalance which causes a patient to lean to one side.
Correction of the cause of the spinal imbalance results in relief of the condition, which can be accomplished through chiropractic treatment. Phone today.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!!! Herald-Observer

VOLUME 43—NUMBER 11

THURSDAY, JANUARY 1, 1981

BELLE GLADE — PAHOKEE, FL.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR will be celebrated at the Belle Glade Marina, at least by city employees and others who've been promising the opening of the new campsites since Oct. 1. This bird's eye view is looking east toward the city. Features of the marina, once construction is completed (hopefully Jan.

15) will include: 1) Pavilion, 2) Boat Launching area, 3) Channel to be cut through existing causeway, 4) Parking area for boaters, 5) Residential area for park personnel, 6) Campsites, 7) Additional 200 campsites to be added later, 8) Office, 9) Comfort Station and, 10) Borrow pit.

That was the year that was

If 1980 was typical of what people in the Glades can expect from the decade, the next nine years should provide more questions than answers, particularly where essential services are concerned.

One of the few major projects completed, for instance, was the National Weather Service radio transmitter near Clewiston, a project begun in the first week of January and only completed in mid-December.

That service is expected to put farmers in western Palm Beach County closer in touch with what they can expect from weather in the immediate future.

More typical of the year, however, were questions such as what the area residents can expect to do with garbage and trash generated, what will eventually be done with wastewater runoff and sewage and how the growing population of the Glades will get enough drinking water. . . not to mention the costs involved.

1980 was the year the Prince Theatre got off the ground in Pahokee, the year construction was started on a 500 seat auditorium on the Glades campus of Palm Beach Junior College. . . and the third decennial hour-long television commentary on the problems involved in migrant labor.

It was the year of on-again, off-again lawsuits concerning Belle Glade city elections, neither of which are resolved yet. And if elections didn't provide enough headaches for the city commission, City Manager Robert Sanders resigned, only to have his records sealed shortly afterward. . . and those racquetball courts.

It all began a year ago, the first week of January, when several members of the National Weather Service toured the Glades to establish a need for a radio station to provide 12-hour updates on advisories, a radio station that went into operation on Dec. 14 in Hooker's Point.

The tour came about the same time Belle Glade city commissioners objected to the planned, April 1, 1980 census, saying they didn't expect an accurate count.

Police officers gave merchants a hand when they began a series of meetings designed to help merchants avoid becoming victims of crime.

A proposed $287 million county road bond issue was explained in January, an explanation that went on until the bond went down to defeat in the Presidential Preferential primary.

With eight months of life left, the Budget and Policy Advisory Committee of the Palm Beach County Solid Waste Authority decided to build a transfer station at the Belle Glade landfill, whence solid waste would be transported to Lantana. The station was supposed to have begun operation Oct. 1. That latest forecast is for Jan. 15, 1981.

It was also in January that the Glades Area Association of Retarded Citizens began a campaign to raise $40,000 by mid-March to buy the land and buildings which formerly housed St. Peters Lutheran Church and School. This was one project that was begun and finished within the year.

By Feb. 1, plans were being hammered into the final stages to create a separate mental health district for the Glades to allow the Glades branch to pull out from under the wings of the 45th Street Center in West Palm Beach.

Ralph Kidder raised his book about raising cattle at the old Everglades Experiment Station, with the title, Cattle to Cane. Bill Abel was recognized with a plaque in Belle Glade.

The South Bay city commission pleased most residents in February by starting the removal of junk cars but a lawsuit stemming from the removal still hasn't been resolved.

Service aims at socialization

BELLE GLADE: Socialization may be a misnomer for a new program just getting underway at the Glades Mental Health Center but it probably comes closer to describing the activities than anything else.

Clinical psychologist Paul DeConna, who said he came to Belle Glade to draw up the program, reflected Friday that "socialization may be a bad term. It sounds like something out of Hitler's Germany but everything you do, whether it's teaching a person how to comb his or her hair or to stir coffee, it's all a part of getting a person ready to get along in society."

Combing hair and stirring coffee, however, are only a pair of skills the program will be offering to members ("We're calling them members instead of clients because we want to get away from the hospital terminology.") in one of several groups.

In the week the programs began, DeConna said he had 14-15 people enrolled as a core group and roughly half of those are enrolled in every one of the programs.

"We use a lot of little objectives in the various programs," DeConna said, "and we always think about the major goal."

The major goal, he said, is to help the group members function to the best of their ability as members of society. The groups attack the overall problem by sharpening social skills, grooming and hygiene, homemaking skills, vocational skills and personal interaction skills.

Socialization techniques are taught in two types of groups, a social group, in which the members serve coffee and doughnuts and chat in a social atmosphere, and the rap group, which DeConna said is for the more serious cases and involves himself and Ruth Howard as co-therapists.

Meanwhile, for those who have had problems with grooming and personal hygiene, he said he will be teaching the men's group and Gay Godwin will be teaching the women. He said he expects some members of the group to be enrolled because they've never learned to take care of themselves or because they've had some experience that left them uncaring about their appearance.

Nora Cain will be in charge of a vocational group, in which motor skills, hand-eye coordination skills and general knowledge, such as the importance of promptness, will be taught.

DeConna said still another group will be learning homemaking skills, which are important because the members have to know how to take care of themselves if they're on their own to be independent.

This group will be taught by Henrietta Allen, who will teach cooking, cleaning, budgeting money and using community resources.

Potential group members will be coming from a variety of areas, DeConna said, but at first will probably be mostly referrals from other programs within the Mental Health Center. He said he expects to expand the referral system eventually to include such areas as the County Health Department, local businesses and other agencies.

DeConna himself said he didn't come "directly into psychology, although earlier experience, when

Water rates hiked 50 cents

By ALMA HENRY
PAHOKEE — Residents living in and around the City of Pahokee must once again rework their household expense budget for 1981.

Already faced with a property tax increase and a garbage rate increase, the Pahokee City Council unanimously agreed at a special meeting Monday night to increase the city water rates by 50 cents for residents living inside and outside of the city limits.

Prior to the actual vote, Councilman Curtis Miners said he was not in favor of a rate increase and would not vote for the increase.

"The residents of Pahokee are already faced with property tax and garbage rate increases, and I don't think they can stand another increase," said Miners.

"How do you expect us to pay our bills?" replied Councilman George Rashley.

After George Cross, director of the Utilities Department, explained the rate increase would be only 50 cents, and the revenue from the increase would be approximately $40,000 the Council on a motion from W.E. McKinstry, and seconded by Rashley, voted for the increase.

The rate increase calls for residents in the city to pay $6 per unit for the first 4,000 gallons per unit, and $1.50 per 1,000 gallons per unit thereafter.

Residents living outside the city limits will pay the sum of $1.88 per 1,000 gallons of water with no minimum compensation per unit.

Under the old contracts, residents living in the city paid $6 per unit for the first 4,000 gallons per unit and $1 per 1,000 gallons per unit thereafter.

The rate for residents outside the city was $1.25, the new rate is a 63 cents increase.

Cross told the Council it presently costs $1.52 per 1,000 gallons to produce water and if the water department revenue is to finance the department an increase is needed.

City Attorney, Michael Stauder in a letter instructed the City Council that before the rate increase becomes effective, the notices must be sent to Southeastern States Utilities, Inc., and the Pahokee Housing Authority.

The letter said a copy of the increases must be in the hand of the Housing Authority by Jan. 1.

Back in September when the Council talked of water rate increases, Randy Mills, executive director of the housing authority and Mead Maxwell, chairman of the PHA Commission appeared before the Council when the city proposed water rate increases and cutbacks to once-a-week garbage collection.

At that meeting Mills and Maxwell said they had found a $10,000 error in the Water Department budget that turned out to be a typographical error.

Cross said with the new increases the water department would be able to carry itself whereas in the past revenue from the Waste Water Plant financed the bulk of the water departments operational cost.

Birthing unit is explored

BELLE GLADE: Glades General Hospital will be pursuing the idea of a birthing unit at the hospital to handle an estimated 350-400 births a year.

Glades General Administrator Pat Lennon said the hospital's board of trustees told him during a regular meeting last Tuesday to pursue the idea that was first proposed during the November meeting.

"If we can work out some of the potential problems," Lennon said, "I think it'll be an asset at the hospital."

He said the hospital probably provides service during 100 deliveries a year that aren't paid for

and only collects on an estimated 15 to 20 percent of the total number of cases. The birthing unit would drop the number who don't pay to about that percentage, he said.

Some of the items that have to be worked out include pediatrics care for high-risk deliveries; neonatal care and an arrangement with the medical staff when they're needed.

A VOCATIONAL GROUP in the Socialization Program begins work with paints to build hand-eye coordination and motor skills as Paul DeConna watches therapists Henrietta Allen, Lena Scurluck and Gay Godwin (facing camera) and group members.

The Greek chef

By Scott Ellis

It's the holidays and you decide to spend that fifty bucks you got as a gift from an unimaginative friend on a dinner with a very close acquaintance. Time to make reservations on the Gold Coast, right? Wrong. It may be the time to try what may be Belle Glade's finest dining establishment, Holiday Inn's Packing House. If it's not Belle Glade's best dinner spot, it is probably the most unique and it certainly has the largest gourmet menu.

And if you've heard a lot of those negative things about the Packing House, banish those thoughts from your mind, because under the knowing guidance of Chef Tom Karas, things are wonderfully different.

Karas, 34, came to The Packing House and Holiday Inn nearly two months ago, and his mouth-watering meals are fast becoming the talk of the Glades. According to Karas, pride and pleasing the people are what a restaurant is all about.

"Every cook cooks different," Karas says, "they always have and always will. I could write my recipes out and they (assistants) follow them to the T, and whatever they're making doesn't taste the same as when I would make it."

"I have a lot of pride in what I put out. I expect the people who work in preparing my food to have the same pride. Without the pride...you're not going to come up with anything decent."

Decent is really a poor word to describe the culinary creations of Chef Karas. Fantastic is the word this reporter and Editor Dean Jones used to describe our surf and turf (lobster and filet) diners, which we both partook of last weekend under the Packing House's gracious invitation.

The Packing House's menu has been expanded and upgraded to offer everything you could find in a coast restaurant, with some unique items included as well. My meal consisted of French onion soup (with a huge hunk of cheese and croutons), along with another appetizer of sauteed mushrooms. The mushrooms were served in a wine and cracker base. A rose wine carafe was also served.

After a salad, my well-done filet and succulent lobster were consumed with delight, as was the chocolate mousse (with brandy) I had for dessert.

Among the other items on the menu are shrimp cocktail, fried and stuffed mushrooms, filet mignon, delmonico steak, french dip, chicken cordon bleu, shrimp scampi, Alaskan king crab, Lake Okechobee catfish, lamb chops, beef kabobs, and baby back ribs. For those of you on diets, I will not mention desserts (but they are varied and delicious too!).

Having worked in fast-food restaurants as a teenager, the spotless condition of Karas' kitchen was almost surprising and the quiet efficiency of the staff was a contrast to the hurry-scurry of a McDonalds or a Burger King. Five cooks, including Karas, work in the kitchen. The Packing House has six waitresses and a cashier.

Karas gave me a tour of the kitchen and dining area, and he emphasized that everything is changing for the better.

"There is definitely a challenge here. Once a challenge is gone for me, well, I have to create a new one. We had several problems here before I came and Dave (Perella) the new manager came, but things are working out fine now. I think the public is really starting to notice a difference," Karas said.

Saying his favorite dishes to cook are greek, Karas is self-effacing about his food creations, joking that he'd rather eat pizza at Dino's.

"Most cooks don't eat their own cooking, simply because they are around it all the time," he said.

How anyone else, though, could resist Karas' creations is hard to believe. Born and raised in Bangor, Maine, Karas said he began cooking at age seven, with his father, who was also a chef.

"I was flipping eggs on a grill, standing on top of a box," Karas recalls.

Hearing about the Packing House opening while working at a Singer Island cafe, Karas also has worked at San Francisco, where, for several years, he was a head chef at a prestigious restaurant. Getting the urge to try something new, he came to the Glades.

"I love the people. I never met people like this before. They're just beautiful people, and I want to cook for them," Karas said.

Karas is also an army vet, serving eight-and-a-half years in Korea, Vietnam, and Okinawa. He earned three Purple Hearts, suffering a particularly bad leg injury in one battle.

With a new dinner menu already devised, Karas wants to create new breakfast and lunch menus too. The restaurant is open seven days a week from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. for breakfast and a buffet lunch, and from 5:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. for dinner.

And when his staff gets the hang of Karas' new methods, (like sauteeing), the chef said more chef specials and native Floridian foods will be offered.

Perella has high hopes for his new chef and revamped restaurant.

"We want to upgrade the quality of the food, that's the main thing," Perella said. "We want to give people a good product. I think Tom, in the short time he's been here, has shown that that's what we're shooting for."

Also from New England (Perella is from Massachusetts), the new manager has been at Holiday Inn for just more than two months, taking over from Art Jones. In that short time, however, he and Karas have hit it off so well and become such good friends that Perella has called the chef his "twin brother."

Both Karas and Perella see the opportunity for the Packing House and Holiday Inn to grow along with the booming Glades and South Florida region. Karas said he was hoping to develop a coordinated food and beverage program for the 20-plus Holiday Inns owned by the chain he and Perella work for.

"We want to be known as the best restaurant in the area. That is what we're striving for," Perella said.

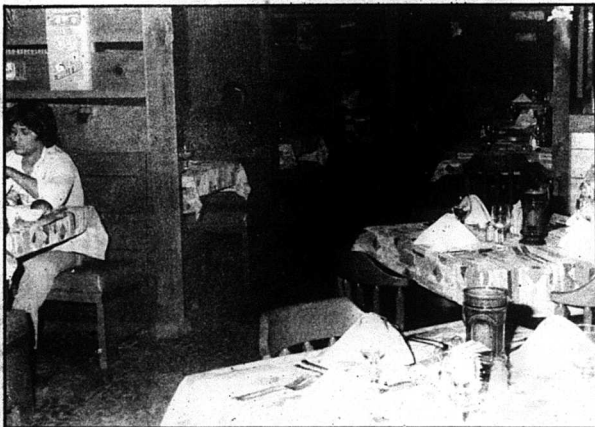

With Chef Tom Karas at The Packing House, the best can't be too far off.

Happy New Year from Mr. Bill

Christmas 80' has come and gone. Keeping this in mind, I started planning the next big event of the year, my New Years Eve party.

Now, most of my friends knew that I planned this party and had the good sense to help out by giving me booze for Christmas. Only thing is, I received five gallons of Canadian Mist, one hat, one shirt, no belt, no shoes, and no drawers.

Started thinkin' about the kind of party I could give, so I decided to limit the guest list to one, wear my hat and shirt, pour the booze in the tub and hope she dresses the same.

After living away from Belle Glade for 10 years, it's good to be back. Now most people like big cities and big city people but after my experiences in the big city, I can vouch for the fact that there is no place like home. It feels really great to walk down the street and speak to at least five or six people that you know, and know by first name! Not so in Miami or West Palm Beach.

When I first moved back to Belle Glade, I thought the residents were the noisiest people in the world. Boy was that a misguided idea. What I found was that people here are concerned about one another and that's something you won't find in a big city. If John Smith was hit by a truck in Miami, who'd pay any attention to him. Buf, let John Smith get hit in Belle Glade and the whole town would know about it. It might even make front page news. The difference is that John is important in Belle Glade and not so important in Miami.

After living in Belle Glade for only two weeks, my next door neighbors invited me to attend their church. While living in Miami for five years, I didn't even know my next door neighbors' name. There were so many people in and out next door, I wasn't even sure what my next door neighbors' face looked like.

Friends and Neighbors are really great to have and apparently in Belle Glade I have a lot. Thanks for making me feel at home again. HAPPY NEW YEAR!

The folks who lived in the day of the hourglass had a psychological advantage. They could see time passing.

And as each fine grain slipped through the neck of the glass, a man's conscience would whisper within him: less time left!

When we look at a clock its hands seem motionless. Is that why millions put off the important decisions that ought to be made right now?

Whatever its cause, procrastination is a disease. It tulls the senses into indolence. It wastes our energy on trivial pursuits, while important tasks remain undone. Especially it attacks the soul, tempting man to believe that there will be plenty of time later to tend to his spiritual needs.

But the cure is simple... and immediate. Just set the alarm clock and begin the New Year with worship in your church or synagogue. You'll soon be facing every important task with eagerness and courage and faith!
